CORLEY FAMILY WINERY

2015 Cabernet Sauvignon

Yewell Vineyard, St. Helena, Napa Valley

Jay Corley first came to Napa Valley in 1969 with the intention of producing world-class wines. Now more than forty years later, his sons are proudly managing the small family winery which produces limited-edition wines designated as either Monticello Vineyards or CORLEY.

When Jay arrived in the Valley in 1969, he began searching for an appropriate site to grow wine grapes. He settled on a piece of land in what is now known as the Oak Knoll District - a part of the famous valley that had heretofore been unplanted. Jay chose to initially focus on Chardonnay and Cabernet Sauvignon and immediately went to work on the property and planted his first vines. The vineyards were as far south as anyone in that era had dared to plant.

It wasn't until eleven years later that Jay Corley decided it was the right time to begin preparations for a family winery. The Corley vineyards were now highly regarded by local wineries and the great California wine explosion was also well on its way to providing a whole new legion of wine fanciers both here and abroad.

The new winery was completed in 1980 and the first release of Monticello Vineyards was warmly received in 1982 by both the wine media and a large section of consumers. It is almost amazing that Monticello Vineyards has remained under the proverbial radar to this day, and the wines have won numerous medals and awards of the highest caliber.

In the late 1990's, the Corleys decided to add a new label to their Monticello Vineyards entity, CORLEY, which includes a Proprietary Red Blend and a collection of high-end, vineyard-designate Cabernet Sauvignons, Chardonnays, and Pinot Noirs. They also produce a CORLEY Reserve, but only in exceptional vintages and these wines represent the family's very finest expressions of Napa Valley wine. The CORLEY wines have truly catapulted the winery entity into stardom and it is now regarded among the most respected wineries in the Valley.

Jay Corley has now placed the fate of his family business in the hands of the next generation of Corleys, his sons Kevin, Chris, and Stephen. Kevin Corley serves as the winery president and winegrower, Chris Corley is the winemaker, and Stephen Corley is the director of sales. Today, the family farms five vineyards in Napa Valley, within Oak Knoll, Yountville, Rutherford and St. Helena. Little else has changed in the 30-plus years of the family winery's lifespan. Monticello Vineyards and CORLEY are still small in size, producing approximately 15,000 cases annually between the two brands, and with great vineyard designated fruit to work with, the future seems quite assured for the winery and family.

Accolades and Tasting Notes

93 Points - Wine Spectator magazine

CORLEY'S 2015 Yewell Vineyard Cabernet Sauvignon comes from a tiny property located on Ehlers Lane in the St. Helena sub-appellation of Napa Valley. The Corley family has been sourcing fruit from this exceptional vineyard since 1982 - and for good reason! The vineyard yields intense, small berries that produce similarly intense wines. On the nose, rich aromas of ripe, red berries and undertones of sweet blond oak, light caramel and mocha enliven the senses. The palate is wonderfully balanced and lush with a deep core of ripe fruit and richness in the depth of body. Aged 26 months in oak. 100% Cabernet Sauvignon. Enjoy!
