Tonti Family Wines

2012 Old Vine Zinfandel

Russian River Valley - Sonoma County

Peter Tonti was introduced to the world of wine at a very young age. As a boy in Columbus, Ohio, Peter would watch his Italian father make wine with an old hand-cranked press and a half-dozen wine barrels in their family basement. He didn't produce much wine - just enough for the family to enjoy with their dinners each night - but the tradition instilled in Peter a lifelong dream to honor his father's vision and to establish a family winery of his own.

Before starting Tonti Family Wines in 2014, Peter Tonti (now 75 years old) had held several careers, most notably as a business consultant and real estate developer. He also served on the board of Worldwide Golf, running their franchise division, and at one point even acquired two Portugal cork companies, which introduced him to many wineries with whom he still maintains relationships today. Peter's extensive business experience makes him an incredibly well rounded individual and it is with great excitement and anticipation that he is now ready to build the family winery he has always dreamed of.

Tonti Family Wines released its inaugural vintage last year, a tiny 350 cases of 2012 Old Vine Zinfandel produced from fruit sourced from several sites in Sonoma County's Russian River Valley. Peter worked closely with award-winning winemaker Gus Gamba (of Gamba Vineyards and Winery) to craft this first release and couldn't be happier with the result. This wine is already receiving some great attention and it is a clear indication of the caliber of wines Peter Tonti plans to produce. We are happy to share this wine with our Platinum Plus! members and introduce one of Sonoma's newest up-and-coming wineries. Enjoy!

The 2012 Old Vine Zinfandel is Tonti's inaugural vintage, and is produced from fruit dating back to 1900. Tonti selected vineyards that are organically dry farmed on the eastern edge of the Russian River Valley, where there is enough heat to ripen the grapes and enough cooling influences from the Pacific Ocean to create concentrated, ripe, mature fruit. This Old Vine Zinfandel offers layers of ripe, dark fruits and cedar in the nose with aromas of red berries, black tea leaves, stone fruits and exotic spices. On the palate, flavors of Bing cherry and raspberry are dashed with allspice and subtle, toasted oak components. It's nicely balanced and complex with soft tannins and just the right amount of acidity. Aged 16 months in oak. Enjoy now until 2022.
